Hungary - new “Stop Soros” legislative package and NGO activities in Europe - CDL-AD(2018)013

Background
In a letter dated 22 March 2018, the Chairperson of the Committee on Legal Affairs and Human Rights of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, Mr Frank Schwabe, informed the Venice Commission that the Committee, at its hearing on “Protecting human rights defenders in Council of Europe members States”, held on 14 March 2018 in Paris, had decided to request an opinion from the Venice Commission on the compatibility with international human rights standards of the Hungarian government’s “Stop Soros” legislative package, which included Bill t/1976 on the licencing of organisations supporting migration, Bill t/19775 on the immigration financing duty and Bill t/19774 on the immigration restraint order. On 25 May, the Hungarian government announced that a new package was being prepared; it was submitted on 29 May to the Parliament. On 31 May 2018, the Chairperson of the Committee on Legal Affairs and Human Rights of the Parliamentary Assembly confirmed that the initial opinion request of 22 March 2018 also covered the newly proposed legislative amendments to the extent that they affect NGOs activities in Europe.

Conclusions

The introduction of a criminal offence establishing criminal liability for intentionally assisting irregular migrants to circumvent immigration rules is not in and by itself contrary to international human rights standards and may be considered as pursuing the legitimate aim of prevention of disorder or crime under the second paragraph of Article 11 ECHR.

Draft Article 353A, however, goes far beyond that. It criminalises organisational activities which are not directly related to the materialisation of the illegal migration, such as “preparing or distributing informational materials”. This on the one hand runs counter to the role of assistance to victims by NGOs, restricting disproportionally the rights guaranteed under Article 11 ECHR, and on the other hand, criminalises advocacy and campaigning activities, which constitutes an illegitimate interference with the freedom of expression guaranteed under Article 10 ECHR. Draft Article 353A lacks the required clarity to qualify as a “legal basis” within the meaning of Article 11 ECHR.

In addition, there may be circumstances in which providing “assistance” is a moral imperative or at least a moral right. As such, the provision may result in further arbitrary restrictions to and prohibition through heavy sanctions of the indispensable work of human rights NGOs and leave migrants without essential services provided by such NGOs. Under the draft provision, as it currently stands, persons and/or organisations that carry out informational activities, support individual cases, provide aid on the border of Hungary may be under risk of prosecution even if they acted in good faith in line with the international law for supporting the asylum seekers or other forms of legal migrants, for instance victims of trafficking. The proposed amendment therefore criminalises activities that are fully legitimate including activities which support the State in the fulfilment of its obligations under international law. Moreover, as “financial gain” is not considered as an element of the offence (but only as an aggravating circumstance), the draft provision is not accompanied by a humanitarian exception clause.

Draft Article 353A lacks the requisite precision and does not meet the foreseeability criterion as understood in the ECtHR case-law. As it criminalises the initiation of an asylum procedure or asserting other legal rights on behalf of asylum seekers, it entails a risk of criminal prosecution for individuals and organisations providing lawful assistance to migrants. Moreover, a humanitarian exception clause is not provided and the draft provision lists open options as to the targeted organisational activities, while advocacy and campaigning activities, including informing individuals of their rights and legal protections, are not excluded from its scope. It should be reiterated that only intentionally encouraging migrants to circumventing the law could give rise to criminal prosecution. Assistance by NGOs of asylum seekers in applying for asylum and lodging appeals cannot be regarded as such circumvention. In addition, the provision risks jeopardising the funding of NGOs as it does not clearly differentiate “financial gain” as the strict counterpart of an illegal activity and “any income” generated in the ordinary activities of NGOs. ...

Background

In a letter dated 13 April 2018, Ms Nela Kerubović, Minister of Justice of Serbia, made a request for an opinion by the Venice Commission on the draft amendments to the constitutional provisions on the judiciary.

In November 2017, the Ministry of Justice had requested the Venice Commission’s assistance in drafting constitutional amendments pertaining to the judiciary. The Venice Commission appointed Mr James Hamilton, a former member of the Venice Commission, with a view to providing assistance to the Ministry of Justice in drafting a constitutional amendment proposal on the judiciary.

The draft amendments were prepared by the Ministry of Justice, following the adoption of the National Action Plan for Chapter 23 of the EU accession negotiations by Serbia with the European Commission, opened in July 2016, with the aim of depoliticising the judiciary and to strengthen its independence. The draft amendments were adopted by the Government of Serbia prior to being submitted to the Venice Commission for the present opinion. Mr Hamilton did not co-draft provisions, but provided advice on the concept paper prepared by the Ministry of Justice.

The Venice Commission regretted the acrimonious environment around the process amending the Constitution of Serbia of 2006: it was counter-productive for a process, the aim of which was to bring all relevant actors together in order to achieve a common goal of bringing Serbia’s judiciary into line with European standards. It therefore encouraged the Serbian authorities to spare no efforts in creating a constructive and positive environment around the public consultations to be held when the National Assembly would examine the draft amendments, in the interests of the country’s entire process of judicial reform – a process that also involves the important alignment of secondary legislation on the judiciary with the amendments, all of which is to be achieved within a very short period of time.

Conclusions

The Venice Commission welcomed the draft amendments and acknowledged the efforts of the Serbian Government in pursuit of its aspirations to develop and evolve as a modern democracy for the benefit of all the Serbian people and in prioritising the need to meet the highest standards of compliance criteria with international best practices and the rule of law. Nevertheless, there are a number of outstanding issues that should be addressed in this important process of amending the Constitution of Serbia.

The Venice Commission made therefore the following main recommendations:

1) Composition of the HJC and the role of the National Assembly:
   The election of non-judicial members of the HJC by the Assembly, introducing a first round (3/5th majority) and a second round, in the event that not all the candidates are elected (this time by a 5/9th majority) provides little incentive for the majority in the National Assembly to avoid a second round of voting. This creates the possibility that half of the members of the HJC will be a coherent and like-minded group in line with the wishes of the current government. This Amendment is therefore unlikely to be suitable to ensure pluralism within the HJC and the Venice Commission invites the Serbian authorities to find another solution.

2) Composition of the HPC and the role of the National Assembly:
   As with the HJC, it is important that the HPC not be dominated by the current majority in the National Assembly so as to give it credibility and to gain public trust in the system. Therefore, having five out of 11 members elected by the National Assembly in addition to the Minister of Justice and the Supreme Public Prosecutor of Serbia – who is also elected by the National Assembly – gives rise to concern. As in the case of the HJC, a better solution to ensure pluralism in the Council should be found, and the issues raised for judges in the HJC apply to the prosecutors in the HPC, to the extent applicable. ...

Improving the relations between the administration and the citizens – 7th UniDem Med Seminar
23 - 26/04/2018

Rabat - the Venice Commission in cooperation with the Ministry of the Reform of the Administration and the Civil Service of the Kingdom of Morocco organised the 7th UniDem Med Regional Seminar. The seminar was entitled "Improving the relations between the administration and the citizens: a democratic imperative". The event brought together senior public officials and experts from Europe and the Southern Mediterranean - Algeria, Jordan, Lebanon, Mauritania, Morocco, Palestine* and Tunisia.

Debates highlighted existing international and national standards, mechanisms and good practices aimed to increase the users' satisfaction. Participants also discussed critical issues such as simplification of procedures, change management, e-governance and digital transformation, access to data and various complaints management systems.

The main objective of the UniDem Med Campus (University for Democracy) is to contribute through peer-to-peer exchanges to the modernisation of the administration in the southern Mediterranean by enforcing law and consolidating institutions. The project strengthens the legal capacities of senior civil servants in areas related to good governance, rule of law and human rights as well as contributes to the strengthening of the links between the public administrations from the region.

The seminar was funded by the joint Council of Europe-European Union program "Ensuring Sustainable Democratic Governance and Human Rights in the Southern Mediterranean", South Programme III.
