2.One or more substitutes shall be appointed for each member of the Board. Subsection (1) applies by analogy.

s24

Members of the Board may be removed only in accordance with the regulations which apply to judges. A member shall withdraw when the conditions for his appointment are no longer fulfilled.

s25

1.The Board of Appeal shall establish its own rules of procedure.

2.The rules of procedure may contain regulations on obtaining and providing information for use in case hearings. Provisions may also be made relating to the deliberation and consideration of decisions in writing, to the chairman's power to make specific decisions on behalf of the Board or to allow cases to be decided by three of the members of the Board, that is to say a judge, a lawyer and a university teacher.

1.The Board of Appeal shall publish each year a report on its activities.

2.A secretariat shall be attached to the Board of Appeal.

3.The Court Administration shall manage the admissibility and administrative matters of the Board of Appeal.

s27

If a public authority, in accordance with s252(2), has become involved in a case on the side of one of the parties or intends to do so the said authority may in a written statement support the party's application to the Board of Appeal.

Part 36Appeals*s368

1.Judgments pronounced by a Byret (Town Court) may be appealed by the parties to the High Court in whose area of jurisdiction the Town Court is situated. If the matter in dispute is a claim which is stated not to exceed DKr 10 000 an appeal against the judgment may be lodged only with the permission of the Board of Appeal, cf. subsection 2.

2.The Board of Appeal may allow an appeal to be lodged against a judgment as referred to in the second sentence of subsection 1, if the case concerns a fundamental principle or if justified by special reasons. An application for the permission must be submitted to the Board of Appeal within 4 weeks of pronouncement of the judgment concerned. The Board of Appeal may, however, exceptionally, grant such permission if the application is submitted later, but within one year of pronouncement of the judgment.

3.In the absence of any legislation to the contrary, judgments pronounced by a High Court as a Court of

First Instance or by the Maritime and Commercial Court in Copenhagen may be appealed by the parties to the Supreme Court.

4. In the absence of any legislation to the contrary the appeal may concern decisions delivered during the hearing of the case.
5. Decisions concerning costs and procedural penalties or judgments pronounced by a High Court or by the Maritime and Commercial Court in Copenhagen may be appealed separately to the Supreme Court only with the permission of the Board of Appeal. The provisions in s371 apply by analogy.

s369

1. An appeal may be a request for revision or reversal of a judgment or for a re-trial.
2. Decisions in judgments pronounced by a Town Court concerning costs and procedural penalties may only be challenged separately in a High Court in interlocutory appeal proceedings, cf. s391(1).
3. Judgments by which a case is dismissed because it was not brought before the proper court or was not brought in due time before the courts or the appeal court may only be challenged in the Supreme Court in interlocutory appeal proceedings, cf. s391(3).
4. A person against whom judgment is pronounced as a consequence of his absence or failure to answer a summons may appeal against such judgment only on the grounds of an irregularity in the hearing of the case.

Parties may not waive the right to appeal before judgment in the case concerned has been pronounced.

s371

1. Appeals may not be lodged against judgments pronounced by a High Court as court of second instance. The Board of Appeal may, however, permit an examination in a court of third instance if the case concerns a fundamental principle.
2. An application for the permission referred to in the second sentence of subsection (1) above must be submitted to the Board of Appeal within 8 weeks of pronouncement of the judgment concerned. The Board of Appeal may, however, exceptionally, grant such permission if the application is submitted later, provided it is within one year of pronouncement of the judgment.

1. The time-limit for an appeal from a Town Court to a High Court is 4 weeks or, for an appeal from a High Court or the Maritime and Commercial Court in Copenhagen to the Supreme Court, 8 weeks. The period of the time-limit is calculated from the date of pronouncement of the judgment, cf. s219.
2. The appeal procedure begins with delivery of the notice of appeal to the office of the appeal court concerned. The notice must be received before the expiry of the time-limit for the appeal or, in the case of the permission referred to in s368(2), or s371, within 4 weeks of the date on which the applicant was informed of the said permission. If the notice of appeal is delivered later it shall be refused. The court of appeal may, however, exceptionally, permit an appeal to be lodged up to one year after pronouncement of the judgment in question. In such a case the notice of appeal must be delivered within four weeks of notification of such permission. The provisions in s398 apply by analogy to the examination of an application for permission to appeal after the expiry of the time-limit. Judgments pronounced by the High Court can only be appealed to the Supreme Court pursuant to the rules of s392(2).
3. An appeal which is discontinued or dismissed on grounds other than failure to observe the time-limit referred to in subsection (2) may, with the permission of the court, be resumed if a notice of appeal is delivered to the office of the court within two weeks of the sitting of the court at which the appeal was discontinued or dismissed.

1. The notice of appeal must contain the following:
 1. details of the judgment appealed;
 2. the address of the respondent;
 3. the claim of the appellant;
 4. the statements, documents and other evidence on which the appellant intends to rely and which were not produced at the lower court;

5.an address in Denmark to which information concerning the case can be delivered to and the judgment served on the appellant.

2.There must be included with the notice of appeal a transcript of the judgment being appealed and duplicates of the notice of appeal. Copies of the documents referred to in subsection(1)(4) must also be provided, if they are in the appellant's possession. The President of the Court can stipulate the number of copies required.

If the notice of appeal does not satisfy the requirements set out in ss373(1)(1), 373(1)(3) and 373(1)(5) and therefore does not form the basis for a hearing of the case the appellant shall be notified that the case cannot proceed. At the request of the appellant a ruling shall be given on the dismissal of the appeal. The same procedure shall be followed if the appellant, within the time-limit set by the Court, fails to provide a transcript of the judgment and copies of the documents referred to in s373(2).

The Court shall serve the notice of appeal on the respondent, with information on the contents of the said notice, and shall require the respondent to provide a written answer, unless he merely relies on the existing judgment in accordance with s377(1). The Court shall also decide whether the answer must be presented at a sitting of the Court or be delivered to the Court. The respondent shall also be informed, when the notice of appeal is served on him, that he shall be considered to have elected to rely on the judgment if he either does not appear at the sitting of the Court or does not provide a written answer in due time. Notice of at least two weeks must usually be given for attendance at the sitting of the Court or for presentation of the written answer. This period of notice, which begins on the date of notification of the notice of appeal, may on request be extended.

1.The written answer must contain the following:

- 1.the claim of the respondent;
- 2.the statements, documents and other evidence on which the respondent intends to rely and which were not produced at the lower court;

3.an address in Denmark to which information concerning the case can be delivered to and the judgment served on the respondent.

2.Objections to the appeal, which can be withdrawn, must be stated in the written reply. If the respondent contends that the appeal should be dismissed and wishes this issue to be decided separately, cf. s253, he may confine himself in his written reply to stating his objections to the appeal being heard.

3.The written reply must be accompanied by the documents referred to in subsection (1)(2) above, if they are in the respondent's possession.

4.If the Court has decided that the written reply is to be presented at a sitting of the Court the respondent must provide the appellant with a copy of his reply and of the accompanying documents no later than the date of their presentation to the Court. If the Court has decided that the documents are to be delivered to the Court the respondent must send a copy of his reply and of the accompanying documents to the appellant no later than the date of their delivery to the Court.

1.No written reply need be provided if the respondent merely relies on the existing judgment and does not wish, as part of the appeal proceedings, to rely on other statements, documents or the like other than those which were presented at the lower court.

2.The respondent shall be considered to have elected to rely on the judgment as referred to in subsection (1) above if he does not provide a written answer in due time in accordance with the provision of this Act, cf. s375. If the Court has decided that the written reply is to be delivered to the Court it shall inform the appellant if the written reply is not delivered in due time.

1.The Court shall decide whether the preliminary proceedings for the appeal should consist of the exchange of further pleas or of a sitting of the Court or whether the preliminary proceedings should be concluded and a date set down forthwith for a court hearing. The provisions of ss376(3) and (4) apply by analogy with regard to the provision of further pleas. The decisions taken may subsequently be revised.

3.If a preliminary sitting is held the Court can decide that the court hearing should take place directly thereafter, if the parties agree to this, or that sufficient information on the appeal has been provided and that it can be heard forthwith.

Once notice of the appeal has been served on the respondent, the appellant may not withdraw the appeal if the respondent in due time, cf. s375, provides a reply which is not merely reliance on the existing judgment and wishes the case to continue.

s380

1.Documents and copies of documents on which a party wishes to rely but which were not previously provided and notification of other evidence which a party wishes to produce during the hearing but which was not included in that party's written pleas must be sent to the Court and to the opposing party as soon as possible and not later than two weeks before the court hearing.

2.A request for the production of evidence outside the court hearing must be made as early as possible and, at the latest, two weeks after the Court has received the written reply or a later written pleading.

s381

The Court may permit a party to produce evidence which is not presented in accordance with s380 if the failure to respect the time-limit is considered excusable.

s382

1.The Court may refuse to take account of claims made in the lower court but which are not made in the notice of appeal or in a duly submitted defence, cf. s375, and which are not covered by the provisions of s377, even if the other party does not object, if the claim should have been made at an earlier stage of the appeal.

2.Objections as referred to in s376(2) which are not put forward in the written reply in accordance with the provisions of this section may be taken into account only if the conditions of s383(2) are satisfied.

1.Claims and statements which were not made in the lower court may, if the opposing party objects, only be taken into account with the permission of the Court.

2.The Court may grant the permission referred to in subsection (1) above if the failure to make the relevant claims and statements at an earlier stage is excusable or if there is reason to suppose that a refusal to grant the permission would lead to a disproportionate loss for the party concerned. In appeals to a High Court such permission may also be granted if the opposing party has sufficient opportunity to safeguard its interests.

3.If claims which were not made in the lower court are not put forward in the notice of appeal or in a duly submitted defence, cf. s375, the Court may, even if the opposing party does not object, refuse to take them into consideration if they should have been made at an earlier stage of the appeal. This also applies to statements which were not made in the lower court and are not put forward during the preparation of the appeal.

The Court may refuse to consider claims and statements which were not made in the lower court and which would make it necessary for the Court to pronounce judgments on matters which were not at issue in the lower court, even if the opposing party does not object.

1.In appeals being heard by a High Court the provisions of s365(3) apply by analogy.

2.In appeals being heard by the Supreme Court it is the responsibility of the appellant to prepare and, within a time-limit set by the Court, to provide the Court with a summary of the documents relating to the subject of the appeal, to be read during the hearing of the appeal. The President of the Court may, after consulting the General Council of the Bar, lay down general rules concerning the drafting of the summary and its delivery to the Supreme Court.

- 1.If the appellant fails to appear at a hearing of the Court before which the appeal is being heard the Court shall dismiss the appeal. This applies also if the appellant has not in due time provided the Supreme Court with the summary in the required form, cf. s385(2). The Court may also dismiss the case if the appellant has not in due time provided the High Court with copies, cf. s385(1), cf. s365(3). If the respondent, instead of relying on the previous judgment, has presented another claim the case shall proceed at the request of the respondent on the basis of the available documents and the evidence produced by the respondent and his oral pleading. If the appellant fails to appear during the preliminary proceedings the Court may still, at the request of the respondent, allow the case to proceed on the basis of the available documents and a written pleading from the respondent. If further court hearings are held the appellant shall also be summoned to attend. If the respondent has extended the scope of his claim or presented statements not made in the court of first instance account may only be taken of such extension or such statements if presented at a court hearing attended by the appellant or in a written pleading notice of which was served on the appellant.
- 2.If the respondent fails to appear at a hearing of the Court before which the appeal is being heard the case shall proceed on the basis of the available documents and the evidence produced by the appellant and his oral pleading. The Court may decide that this shall also apply if the respondent has not in due time provided the High Court with copies of pleas and documents, cf. s385(1), cf. s365(3). If the respondent fails to appear during the preliminary proceedings the Court may still, at the request of the appellant, allow the case to proceed on the basis of the available documents and a written pleading from the appellant. If further court hearings are held the respondent shall also be summoned to attend. If the appellant has extended the scope of his claim or presented statements not made in the court of first instance account may only be taken of such extension or such statements if they are presented at a court hearing attended by the respondent or in a written pleading notice of which was served on the respondent.
- 3.If both parties fail to appear at a hearing of the Court before which the appeal is being heard the Court shall dismiss the appeal.

4.Failure to appear at a court hearing on resumption of the preliminary proceedings shall have the consequences referred to in subsections (1)-(3) only if notice to this effect is given in the summons to appear.

5.The Court may decide not to attach the consequences referred to in subsections (1)-(3) to a failure of one of the parties to appear, especially if it may be considered that there was a lawful excuse for such non-appearance or if the other party requests a stay of proceedings.

1.The Court may decide that the court hearing or part of it shall be conducted on the basis of written submissions if:

- 1.the parties agree thereto,
- 2.the object of the hearing is solely to decide if the appeal may proceed, or
- 3.it is considered appropriate in view of the particular nature of the case.

s388

1.If the appeal court remits the case for re-trial either of the parties may within four weeks of pronouncement of the judgment submit a written request for a re-trial of the case to the Court to which the case has been remitted. In the event of failure to comply with this time-limit s372(2) applies by analogy.

2.The request for a re-trial must be accompanied by a transcript of the remittal judgment. The case shall then proceed in accordance with normal legal procedure.

Part 37Interlocutory appeals*s389

1.Rulings and decisions pronounced by a Town Court may, in the absence of legislation to the contrary, be appealed to the High Court to whose jurisdiction the Town Court belongs.

2.Rulings and decisions on costs amounting to not more than Dkr 10 000 may not be appealed to the High Court. The Board of Appeal may however grant the permission if justified by special reasons.

3. Requests for permission to lodge an interlocutory appeal referred to in subsection (2) must be submitted to the Board within two weeks of pronouncement of the decision. The Board of Appeal may however, exceptionally, grant the required permission if the request is submitted at a later date, but not more than six months after pronouncement of the decision.

s390

After judgment has been pronounced in a case orders made during the proceedings may not be the subject of interlocutory appeals by one party and the Court may withdraw an interlocutory appeal already initiated if the matter to which the order relates can be an element in a subsequent appeal in the case.

s391

1. Decisions in judgments pronounced by a Town Court concerning costs amounting to more than DKr 10 000 or procedural penalties may be the subject of interlocutory appeals lodged separately with the High Court.

2. The Board of Appeal may authorise the lodging of interlocutory appeals against decisions in judgments on costs which, under subsection (1) above, may not be appealed against before the High Court, if this is justified by special reasons. The provisions of s389(3) apply by analogy.

3. Interlocutory appeals may be lodged before a higher court against judgments by which the Court dismisses a case because it was not brought before the proper court or was not brought before the courts or the appeal court in due time. If the judgment was pronounced by a High Court as the instance of appeal, permission for an interlocutory appeal can only be granted by the Board of Appeal. Such permission may be granted if the interlocutory appeal concerns questions of a fundamental nature. Application for an interlocutory appeal permission must be filed with the Board within two weeks from the date of the decision. In exceptional cases the Board of Appeal may, however, grant permission if the application is filed later, but within six months from the date of the decision.

1. Rulings and decisions pronounced by a High Court or by the Maritime and Commercial Court under the rules of s253 in a case heard by the Court as the court of first instance may be appealed to the Supreme Court if permission is granted by the Supreme Court, cf. s253(4).

2. In other cases the rulings and decisions of the High Court or the Maritime and Commercial Court may be appealed to the Supreme Court, subject to permission from the Board of Appeal. Such permission can be granted if the interlocutory appeal concerns issues of a fundamental nature. Requests for permission to lodge an interlocutory appeal must be submitted to the Board within two weeks of pronouncement of the decision. The Board of Appeal may, however, exceptionally, grant the required permission if the request is submitted at a later date, but not more than six months after pronouncement of the decision.

1. An interlocutory appeal may be lodged by any person affected by a ruling or decision.

2. An interlocutory appeal is initiated by the delivery of a notice of interlocutory appeal to the Court against whose decision the interlocutory appeal is being lodged. The notice must contain the appellant's claim and, if necessary, a statement of the grounds on which the interlocutory appeal is based. A copy of the notice of interlocutory appeal must at the same time be sent to the opposing party.

3. Interlocutory appeals against decisions delivered by a Town Court may however always be made orally for the court records. This applies also to interlocutory appeals against decisions which are delivered by a High Court or the Maritime and Commercial Court in Copenhagen and are initiated by witnesses, experts or the third parties referred to in s299.

4. An interlocutory appeal may be supported by new statements or evidence.

1. The time-limit for interlocutory appeals, beginning from the day on which the decision is delivered, is two weeks, cf. s219.

2. The interlocutory appeal must be lodged before expiry of the time-limit for interlocutory appeals or, if the permission referred to in ss389, 391 or 392 is granted, within two weeks of the notification of the permission to the applicant. If the interlocutory appeal is initiated at a later date it shall be dismissed by the Court with which the interlocutory appeal against the decision is lodged. The Court may however, exceptionally, permit interlocutory appeals to be lodged up to six months after the decision. In such cases the notice of interlocutory appeal must be delivered within two weeks of notification of such permission. The provisions in s398 apply by analogy to the examination of an application for permission to appeal after expiry of the time-limit.

s395

In the absence of any legislation to the contrary an interlocutory appeal has no suspensive effect unless otherwise decided by the Court whose decision is the subject of the interlocutory appeal or the Court with which the interlocutory appeal is lodged.

s396

1.The Court whose decision is the subject of the interlocutory appeal, if it does not reconsider its decision, cf. ss178 and 222, shall, within one week of receiving the notice of interlocutory appeal or the entry of the interlocutory appeal in the court records, send to the Court with which the interlocutory appeal is lodged:

- 1.the notice of interlocutory appeal or, in the cases referred to in s393(3), a copy of the entry in the court records,
 - 2.a transcript of the decision which is the subject of the interlocutory appeal, and
 - 3.documents of importance for the hearing of the interlocutory appeal.
- 2.The Court may enclose an opinion on the interlocutory appeal.
- 3.The Court shall notify the parties of the transmission of the case and of the content of the opinion.

- 1.The parties may provide written statements for the Court with which the interlocutory appeal is lodged. Statements which are received by the Court more than ten days after the issuing of the notification referred to in s396(3) may be taken into account only if no decision on the case has already been made.
- 2.The Court with which the interlocutory appeal is lodged may obtain information or statements from the parties to the case or from the Court whose decision is the subject of the interlocutory appeal.

- 1.The Court shall give a ruling on the case on the basis of the documentary evidence provided.
- 2.If there exist appropriate special grounds the Court may decide in favour of an oral procedure. In such cases the parties shall be summoned to appear. If the appellant fails to appear the interlocutory appeal shall be dismissed.

Title V

Legal remedies against decisions already delivered

Part 82

Appeals against first instance judgments pronounced by the High Courts

s940

- 1.First instance judgments pronounced by a High Court may, in accordance with the rules listed below, be the subject of an appeal by the parties to the Supreme Court. In addition to the judgment the appeal may also consider the previous hearing and the decisions delivered during the hearing.
- 2.In addition to the judgment, the decisions referred to in s904 may also be considered in the appeal.

- 1.The Public Prosecutor can bring an appeal both in favour and to the prejudice of the accused. Appeals in favour of the accused may also be initiated by the accused himself and, if he is under 18 years of age, by his guardian. If the accused is dead and he was sentenced to a term of imprisonment his spouse and any of his relations in the ascending or descending line and his brothers and sisters can appeal on his behalf. The Public Prosecutor can also in such cases lodge an appeal against a conviction.
- 2.The accused's defence counsel in a High Court is obliged, when requested, to advise the accused as to whether he should appeal against the judgment and also on the drafting and submission of the notice of appeal and the grounds for the appeal.

s942

The right to appeal can be waived after judgment has been pronounced. An appeal already lodged may be withdrawn provided the judgment of the Supreme Court has not been pronounced. If the appeal is withdrawn after the hearing in the Supreme Court has begun the Supreme Court may not for that reason discontinue its examination of those grounds of the appeal which are considered under the normal procedure (s959).

s943

The basis of the appeal can be that court procedure was disregarded or incorrectly applied; but such disregard or incorrect application of court procedure, whose observance is not a matter to be ensured by the initiative of the Court, may be used as a ground for the appeal only if an interlocutory appeal was lodged in due time with the lower court.

s944

Repealed

s945

1. Besides the grounds for appeal referred to in s943 an appeal may be based only on the grounds:

1. that the Court improperly gave a decision on a matter which, in accordance with the second and third sentences of s885 or s886, is not a matter for a decision by the jury, or convicted improperly in accordance with a finding by the jury against the accused in a situation in which, in accordance with s909, it ought to have acquitted or only imposed a sentence for a lesser offence than that named in the finding or, conversely, wrongly departed from a finding by the jury against the accused pursuant to s909 or acquitted pursuant to s869(2);
2. that the finding by the jury, on which the judgment was based, was incorrect because of improper direction on a matter of law by the chairman of the Court or because in the questions put to the jury there were mistakes arising from an incorrect interpretation of the Criminal Code;
3. that the sentence imposed by the judgment was outside the legally stipulated limits or clearly disproportionate to the gravity of the offence.

2. The appeal may not be based on a claim that the question as to whether the accused should be convicted was wrongly decided as a result of a faulty appraisal of the weight of the evidence, unless the point at issue is one which is not a matter for decision by the jury.

1. Disregard or incorrect application of procedural rules must not lead to the overruling of an appealed judgment unless it is considered probable that observance of the rule of procedure concerned could have meant a different outcome of the case.

2. Non-observance of procedural rules which are intended solely for the protection of the accused may not lead to the revision of a decision in a manner prejudicial to him.

1. If the Public Prosecutor lodges an appeal to the prejudice of the accused he must within 14 days of pronouncement of the judgment serve a notice on the accused that the judgment is being appealed. The Public Prosecutor may also lodge an appeal in favour of the accused after expiry of the said time-limit; it is also no impediment to an appeal if the accused has waived his right to appeal.

2. A notice of appeal must contain information to the effect that the accused or his defence counsel will later be informed of the date set for the court hearing. A copy of the notice shall be sent to the office of the High Court.

1.If the accused wishes to lodge an appeal he must give notice accordingly within 14 days of pronouncement of the judgment or, if he was not present when judgment was pronounced and the judgment is a conviction, of the day on which a copy of the judgment was served on him. The notice of appeal may, if notified at the same time as pronouncement of the judgment or its service on the accused, be given orally either for the records of the Court or to the person who serves notice of the judgment and who in that case has to make the required note in the attestation of delivery of the judgment. Otherwise the notice of appeal, in writing and signed by the accused, shall be delivered to the office of the Public Prosecutor or of the High Court; if the accused is in prison the notice may be served orally for the court records of the Town Court in whose area of jurisdiction the prison is situated or for the record book of the Prison Management (s844). If the accused's notice of appeal is entered in the above-mentioned record book or in court records or is delivered to the office of a High Court a copy either of the entry or of the notice of appeal received shall be forwarded without delay to the Public Prosecutor.

2.As soon as possible after receipt of the notice of appeal the Public Prosecutor shall see to it that a notification containing the information referred to in s947(2) is sought to be served on the accused in the usual way, cf. ss155-158, and shall inform the High Court of the appeal unless the notice of appeal came from the office of that Court.

1.If an appeal is lodged by one party the opposing party may, even if the time-limit applicable to him under ss947 or 948 has expired, lodge an appeal if his notice of appeal takes effect within 14 days of notification to him of the other party's notice of appeal.

2.An appeal not notified within the time-limit referred to in ss947 and 948 shall be dismissed by the Supreme Court unless the applicant can show that the circumstance on which the appeal is based came only later to his knowledge or that the non-observance of the time-limit was otherwise due to factors for which he could not be held responsible. The notice of appeal – which must contain the necessary information on the said circumstance or factors – must in addition be lodged not more than 14 days after he is informed of the grounds of the appeal or after the circumstances which occasioned the non-observance of the time-limit cease to exist.

s950

Either in the notice of appeal itself or in a further notification, which must be provided within the time-limits stipulated in ss947, 948 and 949 and in one of the ways specified therein, the appellant must state the ground or grounds on which he bases his appeal. Where specific justification is provided the Supreme Court may allow him to state the grounds of his appeal after the expiry of the above-mentioned time-limit.

1.Notice of appeal lodged before expiry of the time-limits stipulated in ss947, 948 and 949(1) has the effect of suspending execution of the sentence in respect of those persons convicted who are the subject of the appeal.

2.If the notice of appeal is lodged in the circumstances referred to in s949(2) the Supreme Court may decide, in its response to the request received, that execution of the sentence should be stayed or suspended; this occurs in any event if the appeal is allowed to proceed.

1.As soon as the Public Prosecutor has served the prescribed notices (ss947 and 950) on the accused or has received his notice of appeal with the relevant statement of grounds he shall send the same to the Director of Public Prosecutions together with the pleadings and other documents of the case tried in the High Court and a transcript of the court hearing.

2.If an appeal is lodged by the Public Prosecutor and by another party and is subsequently withdrawn by the Director of Public Prosecutions the latter shall as soon as possible send the documents of the case to the Supreme Court with the comments or requests he considers necessary.

The Supreme Court may, on request or ex officio, dismiss the appeal by a ruling if it considers that the prescribed time-limits and due form were not complied with or that the appellant is not competent to lodge the appeal or that the grounds on which the appeal relies clearly cannot lead to a reversal of the judgment.

s954

- 1.If there are no grounds for immediate dismissal of the appeal the Supreme Court shall appoint defence counsel for the accused, if the latter has not himself selected counsel, and shall arrange for the pleadings and supporting documents to be sent to the Director of Public Prosecutions or to the defence counsel, according to which is first to address the Court (cf. s957), with instructions to transmit them to the opposing party within a stated time-limit – which can be extended by the President – and put the case down for hearing.
- 2.The court hearings which are held before the trial in Court shall be held in camera. Requests to the Court, not made orally in a court hearing, shall be addressed in writing to the Court.

- 1.New evidence may be presented to the Supreme Court concerning matters which in the case in question are submitted to the judgment of that Court. If such evidence is produced it is incumbent on the Director of Public Prosecutions or the defence counsel, after prior notice to the opposing party, to take the appropriate necessary steps. If there is disagreement as to whether or in what way any information must be produced or if its production makes necessary an adjournment of the case the Court must be asked to decide the issue. If the Court decides on its own initiative that new information must be produced it shall give the appropriate necessary instructions to the Director of Public Prosecutions.
- 2.If witnesses or experts are to be examined the Supreme Court may decide, when it considers it necessary in order to ensure that the Court has all the evidence required, that they should be examined before the Supreme Court, cf. ss174 and 209. Otherwise the witnesses and experts shall be examined before the Court concerned in accordance with the rules in Parts 67 and 68.
- 3.The Supreme Court may also, if it considers it necessary to ensure that the Court has all the evidence required, decide that witnesses and experts who have been examined previously shall be summoned to be examined in person during the court hearing before the Supreme Court.

- 4.When necessary the Supreme Court may ask the High Court for a further statement on the hearing held before it.

- 1.The accused is entitled to participate in the court hearing.
- 2.The absence of the accused is no impediment to the hearing of the appeal if defence counsel is present.

- 1.During the hearing before the Supreme Court the party bringing the appeal shall be the first to address the Court. Moreover the hearing shall be conducted according to the procedure which the Supreme Court, pursuant to the rules in Parts 2, 3 and 16 of this Act, shall determine.
- 2.The examination of witnesses before the Supreme Court shall proceed in accordance with the rules set out in ss872-875.

- 1.If one party lodges an appeal relying on grounds which could lead to the Supreme Court pronouncing a new judgment on a question of fact, the opposing party, notwithstanding that he now would otherwise be precluded from appealing against the judgment, shall have the right to contend that it should be set aside by reason of irregularities which could lead to the case being remitted for re-trial. However, he must give the opposing party notice in good time before the hearing of the case of his intent to make such a challenge and inform the opposing party of the grounds he intends to rely on in order that the opposing party has time to consider his position.
- 2.If there are special reasons for granting such permission the Supreme Court must permit the party concerned to present grounds of appeal which are not stated in the notice of appeal by him or in the statement of grounds submitted later (s950) or in a notice given by him in accordance with the last sentence of subsection (1) of this section and which are also not of such a nature that the Court must ex officio take them into consideration (s959). If it is considered that because of the presentation of those grounds it is necessary for the opposing party to consider its position the Supreme Court shall accordingly order a stay of proceedings.

1.The examination by the Supreme Court shall as a rule be limited to the grounds of appeal as presented; there are, however, the following exceptions:

1.When the appeal or any claim made as referred to in s958(1) is based on one of the grounds referred to in s945 the Court may examine whether one of the grounds of appeal referred to in s945 could result in a variation of the decision of the High Court, cf. however the second sentence of s960(3).

2.When an appeal is based only on a procedural error the Supreme Court, if the judgment is not reversed on that ground, can examine whether the Criminal Code was not improperly applied to the prejudice of the accused or whether the sentence imposed was not excessively severe.

3.If, in a situation in which an accused has been convicted, it is found that a procedural rule of importance to his defence was disregarded the Supreme Court may, if it finds that the procedural error casts doubt on the correctness of the conviction, reverse the judgment and remit the case for re-trial, notwithstanding that the error in question was not used as grounds for an appeal.

2.If a judgment relating to a number of accused or to a number of offences committed by the same accused is appealed only by one or more accused or in respect of one or more offences the Supreme Court, if it finds that a ground for appeal which was put forward during the hearing of the case or which the Court in accordance with the provisions of this section has taken into consideration also concerns an accused or an offence in respect of whom or which the judgment was not appealed, may, for the benefit of the accused concerned, apply the appeal ruling also to that part of the case which was not part of the appeal.

1.If the Supreme Court concludes that the decision against which the appeal was lodged should be revised it may itself pronounce a new judgment on points of fact, including, pursuant to s945, if the question at issue was the pronouncement of a conviction, cases in which the accused was by a valid jury verdict found guilty of the offence in respect of which his conviction is at issue.

2.If the Supreme Court finds that the decision against which the appeal was lodged must be revised but that the conditions for the pronouncement of a judgment by the Court on a point of fact are not fulfilled the Supreme Court shall rescind the judgment and, if the grounds for rescission apply also to the proceedings leading to the judgment, shall delete that part or those parts of the proceedings concerned. In connection therewith, if the irregularity concerned is not of such a nature that the High Court should have dismissed the case, it is to be remitted to that Court for re-trial. In so far as it may prove necessary the judgment of the Supreme Court should indicate from which point the new hearing should begin.

3.If an accused in a case in which the Supreme Court intends to pronounce a new judgment on a point of fact is to be convicted according to a provision of criminal law not applied in the judgment being appealed and the application of which the Director of Public Prosecutions has also not raised before the Supreme Court, both parties should exceptionally be given the opportunity to give evidence on the matter. Moreover, if the case is appealed only by the accused any sentence pronounced against him may not be more severe than that imposed by the High Court.

1.If re-trial by a lower court is ordered the Director of Public Prosecutions, if he does not withdraw the indictment, must without delay arrange for the case to be brought again before the High Court.

2.Where the High Court considers it necessary it may decide to restart the hearing at an earlier point of the proceedings than that indicated in the order for a re-trial. Before a new judgment is pronounced the parties must always be given the opportunity to give evidence. If the case is appealed only by the accused any sentence pronounced against him may not be more severe than that imposed by the previous judgment, unless the conditions for a new trial are fulfilled.

3.If a new trial is held no juror may be empanelled who served on the jury for the previous trial.

Part 83Appeal against judgments pronounced by the Town Court

1. Appeals may not be lodged against a judgment given by a High Court concerning an appeal. The Board of Appeal may allow an appeal against a judgment to be lodged if the case concerns a fundamental principle or if justified by special reasons. An application for the permission must be submitted to the Board of Appeal within 2 weeks of pronouncement of the judgment concerned. If it is the accused who wishes to appeal, time-limits are calculated in accordance with s936(3)(a). The Board of Appeal may, however, exceptionally grant such permission if the application is submitted later, provided it is within one year of pronouncement of the judgment.
2. When a request to lodge an appeal is submitted, the Supreme Court may decide that the execution of the judgment shall be postponed or suspended. This happens in any case when the appeal is allowed.
3. The appeal shall be initiated within two weeks after leave is granted. The other party may also appeal, provided the appeal is initiated within two weeks of this party's being informed of the first party's appeal.
4. Appeals which are initiated in accordance with this paragraph may be based on the grounds set out in s943, s945(1)(3) and s963(1)(1). In addition the rules in Part 82 can be applied to this appeal by analogy.
5. Cases concerning the dissolution of political associations can always be brought before the Supreme Court.

Part 84Appeal against judgments pronounced by the Maritime and Commercial Court*s967

Judgments pronounced by the Maritime and Commercial Court can be appealed to the Supreme Court according to the rules in Part 82, though the rules in s962(2)-(5) apply by analogy. Regarding the grounds for appeal, s966(4) applies.

Part 85Interlocutory appeal to a higher Court*s968

1. Against rulings and other decisions of a High Court or a Town Court which may not – or not for the time being – be the subject of an appeal in accordance with the provisions of ss940 and 962 any person who is the subject of a ruling in a decision may, in so far as there are no specific provisions to the contrary, lodge an interlocutory appeal with a higher court in accordance with the rules listed below. Interlocutory appeals against judgments may be lodged only in the cases referred to in ss1013 and 1016.
2. Against rulings and other decisions pronounced during court hearings or their preliminary proceedings interlocutory appeals may however, other than in cases where the law makes special provision for interlocutory appeals, be lodged only when and in so far as the object of a decision is to adjourn, dismiss or withdraw a case or relates to imprisonment, attachment, search or similar or imposes a penalty or costs or is directed against someone who is not a party to the case.
3. In cases where ordinarily an appeal requires the permission referred to in s966 an interlocutory appeal may be lodged by one party only with the permission of the Board of Appeal. The rules concerning permission to appeal apply by analogy.
4. Interlocutory appeals against rulings and decisions of the Maritime and Commercial Court may be lodged with the Supreme Court in accordance with the aforementioned rules, cf. s967.

1. In the absence of any provisions in this Act to the contrary the time-limit for an interlocutory appeal shall be 14 days, starting from the pronouncement of the decision in question; however, the provisions of s949(2) apply by analogy.
2. An interlocutory appeal shall not lead to delay of execution of a decision unless otherwise decided by the Court which pronounced the decision or the Court with which the interlocutory appeal is lodged.
3. An interlocutory appeal against a decision that information should be provided regarding infringement of the confidentiality of communications, cf. s788, or that material procured in the course of any such infringement should be destroyed, cf. s791, shall have a suspensive effect.

1. Interlocutory appeals shall be submitted in writing to the Court whose decision is the subject of the appeal or shall be made orally for the records of that Court. If an interlocutory appeal is lodged by the prosecuting authority it shall without delay serve notice thereof on the person provisionally charged and also on any other person considered to be an opposing party in relation to the matter in question unless the prosecuting authority has stated in court in the presence of the person concerned that it intends to lodge such an interlocutory appeal. If an interlocutory appeal is raised by the person provisionally charged or by someone who is not a party in the actual case the Court shall in such circumstances arrange for the prosecuting authority and the person who would otherwise be considered to be the opposing party to be informed of the interlocutory appeal lodged.
2. If the person provisionally charged is in prison and does not have the opportunity to lodge an interlocutory appeal for the records of the Court in accordance with the foregoing provisions he may lodge it for the records of the Town Court within whose jurisdiction the prison is situated or for the records of the Prison Administration (s844); a copy of the record must without delay be provided for the Court whose decision is being appealed. If the person provisionally charged has defence counsel he shall be obliged to assist the person provisionally charged, as provided for in s941(2).

1. If the Court whose decision is the subject of the interlocutory appeal does not, pursuant to s222 or s178, review its decision in such a way that the purpose of the interlocutory appeal has been achieved it shall without delay transmit the interlocutory appeal to the higher court together with the necessary transcripts and other documents, the latter being certified copies if the originals cannot be sent, and, depending on the circumstances, the comments which the Court may consider necessary.
2. Both the person lodging the interlocutory appeal and the opposing party may submit written statements on the case to the higher court; the same provisions apply to such statements as those given in the last two sentences of s970(1) above on the appeal itself.

1. The higher court shall not be bound by the assessment of the facts on which the decision appealed against was based. If it considers that further information is necessary it shall, if it does not itself wish to arrange for the provision of that information, issue the appropriate instructions; the provisions in s955 and the third sentence of s965(1) apply here by analogy; if the interlocutory appeal relates to a decision by a Town Court the High Court may immediately issue to it the necessary instructions for provision of further information.
2. Where special grounds call for such action the higher court may exceptionally on request or on its own initiative decide in favour of an oral procedure; in such case defence counsel must always be provided unless the person provisionally charged has himself engaged counsel or the counsel who had previously acted for him is authorised to plead in the higher Court and declares that he is willing to do so.
3. The decision of the Court shall be conveyed in a ruling and notified without delay to all those concerned.

s973

Interlocutory appeals may not be lodged against a decision given by a High Court concerning an interlocutory appeal. The Board of Appeal may however grant permission for the lodging of such an interlocutory appeal if the interlocutory appeal concerns a fundamental principle or if there are special grounds justifying it. Applications for permission to lodge an interlocutory appeal must be submitted to the Board of Appeal within two weeks of pronouncement of the ruling or, if it is the accused who wishes to lodge an interlocutory appeal and he was not present when the ruling was pronounced, after the ruling has been served on him. The Board may exceptionally grant the permission if the application is submitted later, but not more than one year after pronouncement of the ruling.

The chairman of the Court may make decisions concerning the preliminary proceedings for the hearing of an interlocutory appeal in the same way as decisions relating to the hearing of an appeal.

Cases of conflict between different branches of Central government shall be resolved by the Constitutional Court where the conflict is between organs empowered to express the will of the branch of government to which they belong, and for the purpose of establishing the scope of the powers vested in each of the branches of government by the Constitution.

The provisions in force concerning the jurisdiction of the courts shall remain unaffected.

The admissibility of applications shall be decided by the Court sitting in camera and by means of an order.

If the Court deems that a conflict of powers has arisen the settlement of which falls within its jurisdiction, it shall declare the application to be admissible and order notice to be served on the organs concerned.

Where relevant, the provisions of Sections 23, 25 and 26 shall apply.

Likewise, a regional government may apply to the Court to rule on a dispute in which the central government has infringed its constitutional powers.

The time-limit for lodging an application shall be sixty days from the date of service or publication of the impugned act or the date on which the existence of the act became known.

The application shall be lodged for the central government by the Prime Minister or a minister delegated by him for this purpose, and for the regional government by the President of the regional government acting on a resolution adopted by the regional government.

Applications in respect of conflicts of powers must indicate where the conflict arises, specifying the act by which the powers are allegedly infringed, as well as the provisions of the Constitution and the constitutional laws deemed to have been breached.

Section 40

While awaiting judgment, the Court may issue an order, including reasons, suspending the enforcement or implementation of the acts which have given rise to the conflict of powers between the Central and Regional government, or between Regional governments, if grave reasons for so doing exist.
