adopt this Constitution, the Basic Law of the Republic of Belarus.

CHAPTER I

FUNDAMENTALS OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL ORDER

Article 1. The Republic of Belarus is a unitary democratic social state governed by the rule of law.

The Republic of Belarus exercises supreme control and absolute authority over the whole of its territory, and implements an independent internal and foreign policy.

The Republic of Belarus shall protect its independence and territorial integrity, its constitutional order and shall ensure legality and legal order.

Article 2. An individual, his/her rights, freedoms and guarantees of their realisation shall be the supreme value and purpose of society and the State.

The state is responsible to the citizen to create the conditions for the free and dignified development of the individual. The citizen is responsible towards the State to discharge unwaveringly the duties imposed upon him by the Constitution

Article 3. The people are the sole source of State power and the repository of sovereignty in the Republic of Belarus. The people exercise their power directly, through representative and other organs in the forms and within the bounds specified by the Constitution.

Any action to change the constitutional order and to seize state power by forcible means, as well as through other violation of the laws of the Republic of Belarus, are prosecuted in accordance with the law.

Article 4. Democracy in the Republic of Belarus is exercised based on the ideology of the Belarusian state as well as the diversity of political institutions and opinions.

The ideology of political parties, religious or other public associations or social groups cannot be established as mandatory for citizens.

Article 5. The political parties and other public associations, acting within the framework of the Constitution and the laws of the Republic of Belarus, shall promote the realisation and protection of the rights, freedoms and interests of a person and a citizen.

Political parties and other public associations have the right to use the state media according to the procedures determined by law.

The establishment and activities of political parties, as well as other public associations aimed at changing the constitutional order by force; or conducting propaganda for war, social, national, religious and racial enmity shall be prohibited.

Article 6. State power in the Republic of Belarus shall be exercised based on its division between the legislative, the executive and the judiciary. The state bodies within the limits of their powers shall be independent: they shall co-operate with one another, check and balance each other.

Article 7. The Republic of Belarus shall be governed by the principle of the rule of law.

The Constitution has supreme legal force and direct effect on the entire territory of the Republic of Belarus. Other legal acts are issued on the basis of and in accordance with the Constitution.

The State, all its organs and officials, organisations and citizens shall act within the limits of the Constitution and the laws adopted in accordance therewith.

Legal acts or individual provisions thereof which are deemed under procedure specified in law to be contrary to the provisions of the Constitution have no legal force.

Normative legal acts shall be officially published or made available to the public by other means provided for by law.

Article 8. The Republic of Belarus recognises the supremacy of universally recognised principles of international law and shall ensure that laws comply with such principles.

The Republic of Belarus, in accordance with the norms of international law, may on a voluntary basis join interstate formations and withdraw from them.

The conclusion of international treaties that are contrary to the Constitution shall not be permitted.

Article 9. The territory of the Republic of Belarus is the natural condition of existence and the spatial limit of the self-determination of the people, the basis of their prosperity and the sovereignty of the Republic of Belarus.

The territory of Belarus is united and inalienable.

The administrative-territorial organisation of the state is determined by law.

Article 10. A citizen of the Republic of Belarus shall be guaranteed the protection and patronage of the State both in and outside the territory of Belarus.

No one may be deprived of citizenship of the Republic of Belarus or of the right to change citizenship.

A citizen of the Republic of Belarus may not be extradited to a foreign state, unless otherwise stipulated by international treaties of the Republic of Belarus.

The acquisition and termination of citizenship shall be in accordance with the law.

Article 11. Foreign citizens and stateless persons in the territory of Belarus shall enjoy the rights and freedoms and fulfil the obligations equally with citizens of the Republic of Belarus, unless otherwise provided by the Constitution, laws and international treaties.

Article 12. The Republic of Belarus may grant the right of asylum to persons persecuted in other states for political, religious beliefs or national affiliation.

Article 13. Property may be public and private.

The state grants everyone equal rights to conduct economic and other activities, except for those prohibited by law, and shall guarantee equal protection and equal conditions for the development of all forms of property.

The state guarantees everyone equal opportunities for the free use of abilities and property for entrepreneurial and other economic activities not prohibited by law.

The state regulates economic activity in the interests of individuals and society; ensures the direction and coordination of public and private economic activity for social purposes.

Subsoil, water and forests are the exclusive property of the state. Agricultural land is owned by the state.

The law may also define other objects which are the property of the State alone, or establish a special procedure for their transfer to private ownership, as well as grant the state's exclusive right to carry out certain activities.

The state guarantees workers the right to participate in the management of organisations in order to improve their efficiency and social and economic living standards.

Article 14. The State shall regulate relations between social, national and other communities based on the principles of equality before the law and respect for their rights and interests.

The relations in the social and labour sphere between the organs of State management, employers' associations and trade unions are based on the principles of social partnership and cooperation between the parties.

Article 15. The State is responsible for the preservation of the historical, cultural and spiritual heritage and the free development of the cultures of all national communities residing in the Republic of Belarus.

The State shall ensure the preservation of the historical truth and the memory of the heroic deed of the Belarusian people during the Great Patriotic War.

Article 16. Religions and faiths are equal before the law.

The relationships between the State and religious organizations are regulated by law, taking into account their influence on the formation of the spiritual, cultural and State traditions of the Belarusian people.

The activities of religious organizations, their bodies and representatives which are directed against the sovereignty of the Republic of Belarus, its constitutional order and civil harmony, or which involve the violation of the rights and freedoms of citizens, or prevent citizens from fulfilling their state, social or family obligations, or are harmful to their health and morals, shall be prohibited.

Article 17. The official language of the Republic of Belarus shall be Belarusian and Russian.

Article 18. The Republic of Belarus shall base its foreign policy on the principles of the equality of states, non-use of force or threat of force, inviolability of borders, peaceful settlement of disputes, non-interference in internal affairs, and on other universally recognised principles and norms of international law.

The Republic of Belarus excludes military aggression from its territory against other states.

Article 19. The symbols of the Republic of Belarus as a sovereign state shall be its State Flag, State Emblem and State Anthem. The description of state symbols and the procedure for their use shall be determined by law.

Article 20. The capital of the Republic of Belarus is the city of Minsk.

The status of the city of Minsk is determined by law.

CHAPTER II. INDIVIDUAL, SOCIETY, STATE

Article 21. Ensuring the rights and freedoms of the citizens of the Republic of Belarus shall be the supreme goal of the State.

Everyone has the right to a decent standard of living, including adequate food, clothing, housing and the continuous improvement of the conditions necessary for this.

Everyone should be socially responsible, make a feasible contribution to the development of society and the state.

The state guarantees the rights and freedoms of the citizens of Belarus enshrined in the Constitution, laws and international obligations of the state.

Bills which may result in a reduction of public funds, or the creation or increase of expenditure, shall be submitted in the House of Representatives in the presence of the opinion of the Government.

The President, or upon his instructions the Government shall have the right to submit proposals to the House of Representatives and the Council of the Republic to declare a bill urgent. The House of Representatives and the Council of the Republic shall in such a case consider the draft within ten days from the date of submission for their consideration.

At the request of the President or, with the consent of the Government, the House of Representatives and the Council of the Republic shall, at their meetings, vote in favour of all or part of a draft submitted by the President or the Government, retaining only those amendments proposed or passed by the President or the Government.

Article 100. Any bill, unless otherwise provided for in the Constitution, shall first be considered by the House of Representatives and then by the Council of the Republic.

A bill, except as provided for in the Constitution, becomes law when it is passed by the House of Representatives and approved by the Council of the Republic by a majority vote of the full composition of each chamber.

The law on the republican budget for the next fiscal year is adopted before the beginning of the fiscal year. If the law on the republican budget is not adopted within the stated period, the republican budget is administered temporarily.

Bills passed by the House of Representatives are transmitted within five days to the Council of the Republic, where they may be considered for a maximum of twenty days, unless otherwise provided for in the Constitution.

A law shall be considered approved by the Council of the Republic if a majority of the full composition of the Council of the Republic has voted for it or if it has not been considered by the Council of the Republic within twenty days or, if the draft law is declared urgent, within ten days from the date of its submission. In the event the Council of the Republic rejects a draft law, the Chambers may set up a conciliation commission formed on a parity basis to overcome the disagreement. The text of the bill worked out by the conciliation commission shall be submitted to both chambers for approval.

If the conciliation commission fails to adopt the agreed text of a bill, the President or upon his instructions the Government may require the House of Representatives to make a final decision. A law shall be deemed to have been passed by the House of Representatives provided that at least two-thirds of the full composition of the House of Representatives has voted in favour of it.

A law passed by the House of Representatives and approved by the Council of the Republic, or passed by the House of Representatives as provided for in this Article, shall be submitted within ten days to the President for signature. If the President agrees with the text of the law, he shall sign it within two weeks.

If the President applies to the Constitutional Court with a proposal to verify the constitutionality of a law within the specified period, the deadline for signing such a law shall be suspended while the proposal is being examined by the Constitutional Court. The opinion of the Constitutional Court must be adopted no later than ten days from the date of submission of the proposal by the President. If the Constitutional Court confirms the constitutionality of a law, the President shall sign it within five days of the adoption of the opinion by the Constitutional Court. If the Constitutional Court finds a law to be unconstitutional, the President shall return it to the House of Representatives.

If the President does not return a law within two weeks of its submission to the President or, if the Constitutional Court has issued an opinion on the constitutionality of a law, within five days of the adoption of the opinion, the law is considered signed. A law is not considered signed and does not enter into force if it could not be returned to Parliament at the end of the session.

If the President disagrees with the text of the law, he returns it with his objections to the House of Representatives, which must consider the law with the President's objections within thirty days. If the law is passed by a majority of at least two-thirds of the full composition of the House of Representatives, it together with the President's objections, shall be sent within five days to the Council of the Republic, which must also reconsider it within twenty days. A law shall be passed if it is approved by a majority of at least two-thirds of the full composition of the Council of the Republic. The law, after overcoming the objections of the President by the House of Representatives and the Council of the Republic, is signed by the President within five days. The law also comes into force if it is not signed by the President in this period.

In the same order, the chambers shall consider the President's objections to certain provisions of the law, which shall be returned for a second vote. In this case, before the House of Representatives and the Council of the Republic take a decision, the law shall be signed by the President and come into force, except for those provisions to which there are objections from the President.

Article 101. removed.

Article 102. Deputies of the House of Representatives and members of the Council of the Republic shall enjoy immunity when expressing their opinions and exercising their powers. This shall not apply to accusations of slander and insult against them.
